Yesterday the senate passed a tax of 5 per cent on all inheritances, legacies and bequests left to others than lineal descendants or adopted heirs. The proceeds to go to the state university. The bill was introduced by the house and passed by nearly three hours, and then received the endorsement of the house by a vote of 8 to 7.

The house applied itself all day to the calendar of bills recommended by the steering committee, but did not make much progress.

The measure to reduce stock yard charges was ordered to third reading in the house. Yesterday the senate passed a tax of 5 per cent on all inheritances, legacies and bequests left to others than lineal descendants or adopted heirs. The proceeds to go to the state university. The bill was introduced by the house and passed by nearly three hours, and then received the endorsement of the house by a vote of 8 to 7.

The other bill would prohibit, for a period of ten years, the shipment from the county were killed to any other county in the state, or outside the state, deer, turkey, quail, prairie chicken and pheasant.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 18.—Beer legislation occupied a good share of attention of the lawmakers in both the senate and house. Yesterday the senate the Farris beer inspection bill, was referred to the committee on revenue, and in the house the bill introduced by Mr. Chinn, of Shelby, was taken as a special order, amended and ordered engrossed by a vote of 50 to 17.

There was very little debate over the house bill, but it was amended in a dozen places, and one new section inserted. As the bill now stands, the governor would appoint one chief inspector at a salary of $2,000 a year, and the chief of inspectors would have four deputies at $1,500 each. All fees would go into the state revenue fund. In place of the present system, the proposed inspection was raised from 1 cent gallon to 2 cents, and the cost of slaughtering packages from 2 cents to 3 cents. The Farris senate bill would also give the proceeds to the general revenue fund.

The senate completed its work a little after noon, and adjourned until Monday afternoon. The house continued work, with members absent, but during the afternoon the attendance was better, and the engrossment of bills could be considered. One of the special order measures sent to engrossment was the house bill to reduce the contract rate of interest from 7 to 6 per cent.

The bill for the establishment of a state fair was amended by the steering committee, and will come up for consideration early next week.
